BATTLE ROYAL WILL BE WITNESSED ON THE DIAMOND TOMORROW

Albuquerque and Las Vegas to Work for All There Is in It: Locals Hope to Even Up the Score and Win.

The fans are assured of some great baseball tomorrow and Sunday, with both the Albuquerque Grays and the Las Vegas Maroons striving in every way to win in the present series of three games. The first game of the series began late this afternoon at the city park and although comparatively few could get away from business, the crowd was fair, a large number of ladies taking advantage of the free admission invitation extended by Manager Paulin. Because of the fine baseball the Las Vegas team handed out when in Albuquerque two weeks ago, it is certain that some interesting playing will be seen in the series. Albuquerque will go after the Maroons harder this time than ever before, leaving a stronger and more aggressive line up.

Everybody in town who has the interests of the baseball club at heart should get out tomorrow and Sunday and help things along.

BRESNAHAN SAID TO BE BEST BASEBALL MANAGER

The Philadelphia Ledger has this to say regarding the abilities of the sports Cardinal manager:

"The address of managerial instinct was never more far-fetched demonstrated in the instance of Roger Bresnahan, the skipper of the St. Louis Cardinals. In the judgment of many Bresnahan has accomplished more with less material than any manager in the major leagues. With two or three first-class players he has brought the St. Louis team from a position of mediocrity to that of pennant tender. The personality of his character is conspicuously evident in this effort. Always a great player in all departments of the game, he has demonstrated an ability to impart his knowledge to his players, who mostly came to him as the cast-offs of other clubs. Bresnahan belongs to the tight-lipped class of managers. Shrouded under McGraw, he successfully has imitated the tactics employed by the New York leader. His one fault is lack of discretion and diplomacy on the field. Times without number Bresnahan has forfeited his services to his team by his hasty temper. But experience is a great teacher, and the pugnacious catcher-manager has been taught that "sacrifice is the better part of valor." His objections to umpires' decisions have been less frequent and violent this year than ever, and, according to President Lynch, this fact has had not a little effect upon the standing of his team in the pennant race. Just as clay is essential to the potter's skill, so is first-class baseball material necessary to show the resources, skill and ability of a manager. With the proper material Bresnahan would win a championship."

It would be an apologist of some hardness who would come to bat with any wading alibi for the Chicago Cubs this season. In the first place the Cubs have pulled down four league championships and two world's championships in the last five years, which is about as much as any one club should be entitled to. In the second place, the Cub machine, from the very opening of the present season, has not looked good enough to occupy anything like its present position in the race, where it appears to be finishing a pretty fair second, if not hair-breath first.

And the said Cub machine, shot to pieces as it was when the season opened, has been a contender for the lead all the way in the face of some of the bitterest luck a club ever encountered—and that isn't by way of an alibi or an apology, but merely preliminary to a natural wonderment as to where the Cubs would be if they had traveled with a fair amount of luck. On paper, they don't deserve the places they now hold. But where would they have been if all or some of the following things had not happened—and there are clubs in the National league today which have run along on a nearly even keel all season.

"Now, gentlemen," said the stage manager at rehearsal, "I want you all to wear your heavy overcoats to this scene, as it is supposed to be an extremely chilly night."

"I have no overcoat, sir," replied one of the actors—then a bright thought struck him: "but I could put on my heavy under-wear."—Boston Transcript.

A FASHION LUNCH BEATS THEM ALL 20c SERVED AT NOON

EXPERIENCE COMES HIGH, so it is cheaper to use that of others than to experiment yourself. Our customers say our bread is the best in town; that they could not ask for better. This, of course, is very gratifying to us, but it will be more so to you when you get to know how good our bread really is, how healthful and how nutritious, with that delightful flavor which only the very best of flour and skillful baking can give.

Have you the "shirts?" Lots of men are afflicted that way now-a-days.

Varsity Boys Are INITIATED INTO GREEK FRAT

Hugh Arthur Carlisle and George Walker Compelled to Follow Absolutely Dictates of Sigma Tau Members.

Arrived in various costumes, with their faces painted in various colors, undressed under dire penalties to do nothing and everything they were commanded and directed to do in a dress fit for college boys. Hugh Arthur Carlisle and George Walker, members of the freshman class of the University of Nebraska, were just made initiates into the Sigma Tau, a Greek letter fraternity of local origin. That Carlisle and Walker were forced to submit to such penitential trials.

That the second and subsequent initiates as members of the Sigma Tau were in great and glorious evidence from the willfulness and obstinacy with which the initiates defied the strictures. Also, the more timid and vacillating members of the class submitted to them through the examinations. So content with having the process of initiation go on the Sigma Tau, the initiates were satisfied with the results of the examination.

OPINIONS DIFFER AS TO PROSPECTS IN

WOOL TRADE

There is Belief That Wool Can Not Go Lower and Many Think That It Must Go Higher Before Long.

With reference to the wool situation, the Boston Commercial Bulletin of a recent date says:

Transactions in the Boston wool market this week have been extremely limited and what sales have been effected were on small lots and spread over a wide range of grades, rather more foreign wool than usual being brought in the business put through.

Notwithstanding the comparative lowness of the sales since the tariff bill was dissolved of, although it had been expected that more wool should have moved, prices are maintained on an unchanged basis this week, dealers declaring that there is no occasion for them to sacrifice their wools, which are already on a low and cheap basis, especially since these wools are quite likely to be needed by the mills later even though the goods market at the present moment is dull and without particular encouragement.

Low Wool Principal Sellers—Demand continues principally for the low wools, which are especially sought after by the woollen mills and serge manufacturers although the latter have not been so insistent on these grades this week as they were on account of the steady sales of low wools which have been made, there are comparatively few lots available on the market, many dealers being well sold up ahead already.

Other importers, which have low wools to offer, have yet got their asking price very high, so high in fact as to absolutely shut off trade. For instance, a certain St. Louis dealer has his wool forwarded samples of common and lead, for which he wanted
